Dear Ms. Molloy,

Given your congressional oversight role, we invite you on a staff delegation trip to Haiti on May 30- June 1, 2017 to witness firsthand the U.S. government's efforts to combat vector borne diseases like malaria and Zika as well as other key global health challenges in Haiti.

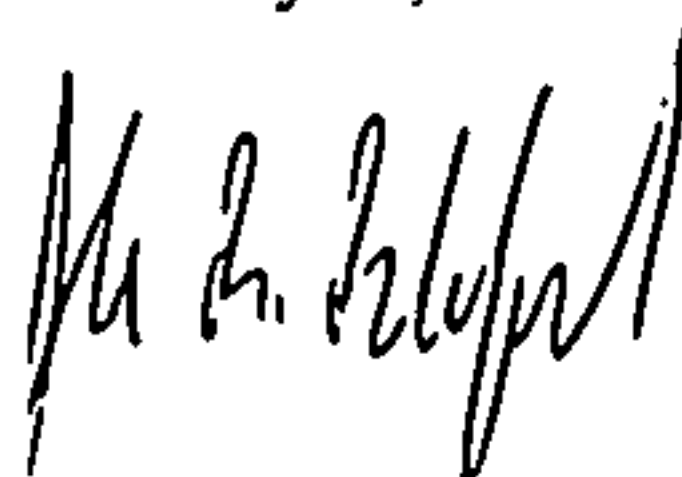

During this staff delegation trip, we will examine the opportunities to control Zika, and eliminate malaria in the Caribbean. More broadly, we will examine how anti-malaria and anti-Zika efforts are a key component to the global health security agenda and a strong pillar of U.S.- Haiti bilateral cooperation. Staff will have an opportunity to engage with a variety of U.S. government officials from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the U.S. Agency for International Development, and the U.S. State Department. We will also engage directly with foreign government officials, public health experts and other key stakeholders as we examine the global health landscape in the broader health and security context.

Thanks to bipartisan support in Congress, leadership across both Republican and Democratic Administrations, support and resources from faith communities and the private sector, the United States is leading the world and has achieved outstanding success in fighting malaria and saving lives. This trip will demonstrate how fighting vector borne diseases is consistent with our values and advances America's interests in the world and in our neighborhood in the Americas.

Though malaria may not seem like a top priority for Haiti, investing in eradicating the disease will help to strengthen the public health system in Western Haiti which was devastated by Hurricane Matthew, and eliminating the disease would be an important victory for Haiti and the region.

We hope that you will consider joining us. Please contact Kara Saleeby (Kara.Saleeby@malarianomore.org) at Malaria No More for additional information.

Thank you,
